

How to build a clientele

An effective way to build up your clientele is to set time aside each week you can dedicate to working with clients.

Think about how many days per week, on which days of the week, and on each day how many hours do you have available to offer sessions. Calculate for each Rebirthing session 2 hours. If you feel like offering more than 1 healing session/day, leave at least 1 hour gap between sessions. Use that 1 hour for taking notes of the previous session, rest and integrate.

Purchase an appointment book.

Make appointment blocks for sessions in your appointment book. Block out the days and the hours of the day you are available for the sessions.

Fill your appointments with real people whether they pay you or not.

Be clear about your fee and your receiving ability.

If you don't have clients for each time you planned to offer sessions, give it away to a friend, or give a rebirthing session to yourself.

Keep your appointments even if you do not have clients!

With this formula you are 'sending out' the energy / message to the Universe, that you are available for sessions. Your attitude will attract clients.